21 ADAM R. GROSSMAN,

22
23 SUPPLEMENTAL REPLY FOR ORDER
24 APPOINTING CHAPTER 11 TRUSTEE
25 INSTEAD OF DISMISSAL
26

27 Jill Borodin (“Rabbi Borodin”) files this supplemental reply in support of her
28 motion for an order directing the appointment of a Trustee in the Chapter 11 bankruptcy
29 of Adam Grossman (the “Debtor”).
30
31

32 I. Introduction
33

34 The original motion to appoint a trustee was submitted by Rabbi Borodin on 35
36 October 22, 2010. See Motion to Appoint Trustee, Docket Entry # 32 (the “Motion”).
37 The Court continued the hearing date for the Motion to December 3, 2010, requesting 38
39 that the Debtor supplement the record with additional financial information. At the time,

1 the Court noted that failure to comply with such request would result in the appointment
2 of a trustee, or, alternatively, dismissal of the case. The Debtor has failed to comply with 3 the Court's request before the deadline. This supplemental reply is intended to 4 emphasize the reasons demonstrating that interests of justice and efficiency favor
5 appointment of a trustee rather than dismissal.

12 II. Background 13

14 Every aspect of the Debtor's reorganization efforts has been marked with lack of 15 full disclosure, delay and uncertainty. As set forth in detail in the Motion, the Debtor's
16 bankruptcy schedules, and his compliance with other bankruptcy procedural 17 requirements, have been deficient in numerous ways. See Motion.

24 The record also suggests that the Debtor's serial Chapter 11 filings were intended,
25 and successful for the purpose of delaying a dissolution proceeding to which the Debtor
26 and Rabbi Borodin were parties. Discovery conducted in the dissolution proceeding has 27 brought to light transfers made by the Debtor from several of his company bank accounts
28 totaling $718,185.82 between September 11, 2009 and October 1, 2010. See Motion.

35 The Court's request for supplemental information included, among others, a filing by the 36 Debtor of a statement accounting for the transfer of the $718,186, including dates of each 37 transfer, names and addresses of each transferee, and the amounts of each transfer. The 38 Debtor's failure to comply with the Court's request is yet another illustration of his 39 unsuitability for remaining as debtor-in-possession in this Chapter 11 matter.

mechanism for appointment of a trustee when grounds exist for dismissal of the case under Section 1112, and the court determines that appointment of a trustee is in the best interests of creditors and the bankruptcy estate. Factors on which the determination regarding appointment of a trustee has often hinged include the existence of pre-petition voidable preferences or fraudulent transfers and the unwillingness or inability of management to pursue estate causes of action. See e.g., In re Nartron Corp., 330 B.R. 573, 592 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 2005).

While the Debtor's failure to file Form 26, and provide other detailed information regarding the financial condition of his various companies obstructs the financial picture of the Debtor's estate, it is clear that the estate has suffered a continuous loss and diminution as the Debtor has been transferring substantial sums out of the estate. The fact that the Debtor has failed to provide any explanation as to how such transfers were beneficial to the estate raises the presumption that such transfers may be recoverable as fraudulent and/or preferential. The recovery of even a fraction of such transfers will significantly replenish the estate, providing an increased opportunity for financial rehabilitation and a successful reorganization. In light of the Debtor's reluctance to even disclose these transfers, let alone pursue their recovery as fraudulent or preferential, is indicative that a neutral and unbiased trustee stands in the best position to pursue the

5 Additionally, the Bankruptcy Court presents a uniquely efficient forum for the 6 investigation, recovery, and fair allocation of avoidable transfers. Given that many of the 7 creditors of the estate and transferees of the authorized transfers are located all around the 8 nation, the dismissal of the current bankruptcy case will likely open a floodgate of state
9 court litigation for recovery of fraudulent transfers in multiple forums.
